Newest city park honors athlete, judge

Jerome D. Barry played professional baseball before becoming local justice of the peace

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

On Friday, the City of West Sacramento will host a double grand opening, celebrating both a neighborhood park and a water tank station in the Bridge District. The twin public facilities are located at 809 Ballpark Drive, alongside the Ironworks subdivision and close to Raley Field.

"It's a 'neighborhood' park," said recreation superintendent Andre Pichly. "It has some play structures, swing sets and a very interactive climbing structure that's geared toward kids about age 8 to 14. The structure has a lot of ropes, aluminum and climbing ladders – it's probably the most unique climbing structure in our park system."

The climbing is located over a forgiving surface made of recycled rubber.

Nearby is a smaller climbing structure for the little ones, and a couple of little "spinning cups" that kids can sit in and twirl. There's also a lattice-covered picnic area.

The park is right next to the control building for the city water tank. The wing-roofed control building has a couple of water pumps inside. The building and the water tank are both secured from public access, but the outside wall of the pump building has an unusual amenity:

"It has a couple of portholes in it, so kids – or anyone – can look in and see the mechanics of the thing," reported Pichly.

The new park is known as the Jerome D. Barry Park.

Barry was an accomplished local baseball player who pitched for professional and semi-pro teams. He was also a rower with the Riverside Boat Club. Son of a pair of Irish immigrants, he grew up in the city's old northern Washington township and served as a local justice of the peace from 1913-1925.

The 3.2 million gallon water tank was finished about a year ago. Tanks like this one serve as a "pitcher of water" for the city, reported the City's Drew Gidlof last year.

"As water is taken in at the river, and treated and prepared for consumers, it is disseminated to various strategic points in the city," he told the News-Ledger in 2013. "As the residents turn on their faucets, the water comes from their designated facility."

The new tank is meant to help meet peak demand in the Bridge District and the Washington area near the 'ziggurat' building.

The park takes up about 1.5 acres, and the water facility a couple more acres, according to city sources.

The water tank facility was budgeted at about $5.25 million, with funds chipped in by the state, the former local redevelopment agency, and local property owners. The park was budgeted at about $545,000, funded by developer impact fees in West Sacramento.

The public is welcome to the grand opening ceremony Friday at 10 a.m. Parking is available on Drever Street at the west end of Ballpark Drive. RSVP to events@cityofwestsacramento.org.

The new park boasts an organic-looking climbing structure, seen in the foreground above. The light-blue ground surface is soft rubber. To the left, beyond a fence, are rail cars on a local rail spur. Beyond the play surface is the control room for the water tank (background). Notice the three "portholes" looking into the mechanics of the pumps inside the control room.

Feb. 19, 3:49 p.m.

An undercover officer working as a prostitution "decoy" in front of a West Capitol Avenue motel reported she was approached and chatted up by a 29-year old man from Soule Street.

The man asked how long she had been working there, and she told him she just got there. She said she usually worked the streets in Sacramento, but was trying to get away from her "old man." The undercover officer asked the man if the spot she picked had good traffic in customers.

It wasn't, he advised the undercover officer, because it was "hot." Police had been working the area, doing undercover operations to curtail prostitution.

The man then "asked me if I wanted a 'bump,'" the decoy reported, explaining that this was "a slang term for a line of methamphetamine or cocaine salt." She agreed to do a "line," and offered to take him to her motel room and share his drugs. The pair went to the room,

Stolen bees: W.S. man convicted

On Thursday, a Yolo County jury found 51-year old Viktor Zhdamirov of West Sacramento guilty of a felony charge involving receiving stolen property.

The property consisted of about 80 bee hives and their colonies.

According to the office of District Attorney Jeff Reisig, the theft was discovered by Tauzer Apiaries in 2012, after two sites were "ransacked" and hives stolen. Judging by the characteristic behavior of bees that have lost their queens, Tauzer estimated the theft occurred about eight days before the discovery on Sept. 11, 2012.

Owner Mark Tauzer and his employees went looking for the "distinctively marked" hives, and found their lids abandoned next to Jefferson Boulevard south of West Sacramento. There was also an empty five-gallon bucket of green paint.

Two days later, Tauzer's hives were found – partially repainted green in an attempt to cover up the original markings. Hives were mixed with those belonging to Zhdamirov.

Sheriff's deputies contacted Zhdamirov, who admitted taking the property. Even after the hives were recovered, damages were estimated at $65,000.

Zhdamirov will be sentenced on April 4. He faces up to three years in prison, plus restitution to Tauzer.

The D.A.'s office gave credit to Tauzer for marking his hives and then finding his own stolen property.

Cockfighting conviction

A Dunnigan man was sentenced to 20 days in county jail and three years probation for operating a cockfighting operation on his property. That sentence was passed down last week for 63-year old Lorenzo Pena Ponce, who was found guilty by a jury last month for permitting cockfighting on his premises, owning game birds with intent to fight, and possession of gaffs – the knives or blades attached to the legs of fighting roosters.

Yolo County District Attorney Jeff Reisig's office said the charges resulted from a sheriff's department visit to the northern Yolo County property in February of 2013. Responding deputies found what they estimated to be 70 people enjoying the "blood sport."

"After dozens of participants ran away, deputies located a barn containing a fighting pit where roosters continued to fight," reports the D.A.'s office. "The Sheriff's Animal Control Division arrived shortly afterwards to assist. Many of the roosters found on scene were dead or had to be euthanized due to the inhumane treatment. Deputies also found gambling paraphernalia, gaffs, and vitamin B shots. . . There

Another reason husbands shouldn't do the dishes

The other day, a friend tossed a New York Times Magazine on my desk and told me I should check out one of the articles in it because he thought it would make for a good column.

"What's the article about?" I asked with interest, always on the lookout for a good column idea.

"It's about how society is screwing up everyone's sex life with all these new ways of looking at the roles men and women are supposed to play in relationships. Nowadays relationships are supposed to be 50/50, but it turns out that being someone's partner, helper and best friend isn't exactly an aphrodisiac."

"Really?"

"Yeah, in reality, helping out with the laundry and dishes, not to mention doing the grocery shopping and taking the kids to all their after-school activities, doesn't score as many points with women as us men have been led to believe. In fact, somewhere in there it says that husbands who cook, vacuum and do the laundry have sex a couple of times less a month than those who don't lift a finger."

"No kidding? I wonder how they figured that out?"

"They did a bunch of studies I guess, and among other things, they basically discovered that nice guys still finish last. Anyway, check it out and if you get a good column out of it, I could use a new putter."

My Back Pages

By Daryl Fisher

The article turned out to have a pretty long title: The Egalitarian-Marriage Conundrum – Does an Increase in Marital Satisfaction Lead to a Decrease in Sexual Satisfaction? It was penned by a lady named Lori Gottlieb and it examines in quite a bit of detail what effects egalitarian marriages are having on the sex-lives of couples. She defines an egalitarian marriage as one which is built around equal power, friendship, and shared duties and interests, with most if not all household responsibilities treated in "an equal way."

But much to the author's surprise, "the values that make for good social relationships are not necessarily the same ones that drive lust." In fact, one of the studies quoted in the article found out that 34% of adulterous women said they were actually quite happy in their marriages. And another interesting finding was that when men do just the masculine chores around the house like mowing the lawn and taking out the garbage, their sex life goes up 17.5%.

Anyway, after reading the rather lengthy article, I was just as confused as ever by what women do and do not want in their men, and suddenly found myself thinking back to a long ago conversation about how, for at least one woman, even a lousy sex-life can have its advantages, and it went a little something like this:

"For a long time," explained my friend, "I haven't been all that interested in love making, although at least it has become a really good way for me to organize my grocery shopping."

"You're probably going to have to explain that," I said with a smile she didn't return.

"I'm serious," she insisted. "If Ron (fictitious name) and I are going to make love, it's almost always on a Saturday night. He's too tired on weeknights from working, and on Sunday night he's usually worn out from playing golf or going fishing or whatever. And forget the mornings because he always wakes up cranky. Plus he has this thing about morning breath."

"But what does any of that have to do with your grocery shopping?" I asked with interest.

"Well, I happen to hate crowded grocery stores, so I always do my shopping on Sunday mornings, you know, when everyone's at church or visiting relatives or just sleeping in. And somewhere along the line, our Saturday night love making got pretty boring, and while we were, you know, being intimate, I started organized my shopping list in my head. And over the years, I'm afraid it's got to be kind of a habit."

'Relationships are supposed to be 50/50, but it turns out that being someone's partner, helper and best friend isn't exactly an aphrodisiac.'

"You're putting me on, right?" I asked.

"No I'm not. Do you ever do the grocery shopping?"

"Not really."

"Well, take my word for it, if you haven't got a pretty good idea of what you need, you'll end up impulse buying and coming home with a lot of stuff you really don't need and hardly any of the things you do. So I learned a long time ago that it's really important for me to have a good, well-thought-out list before I ever step foot in a grocery store."

"Let me get this straight. You're telling me that you can be making love to your husband and be thinking about vegetables and potato chips and boxes of cereal at the same time?"

"That's right."

"I don't believe you!"

"Well, that's because you are a man," she said with an all-knowing smile. "Plus you've never slept with Ron."

GUEST COMMENTARY:

My blind date with Zane Grey

I know he's no longer alive – it was a 'virtual' blind date, put together by the West Sacramento library staff. Their Valentine's Day season "Blind Date with a Book" program provided several books in plain brown wrappers, along with just minimal information about the book – historic western, science fiction, or mystery.

It's only after you check out the book and remove the wrapper that you discover the name of the book and the author. In my case, the book was "Forlorn River," by Zane Grey, published in 1928. Zane Grey's books were favorites of my dad and my brother, but I had never read one before. Like most blind dates, this one started out awkwardly, because we didn't know each other at all. The language was old-fashioned. Some words have quite prominent and different meanings today. For example: "Ahuh!" ejaculated Ben. . ."

But as I read on, the setting and the characters began to grow on me. I cared what happened to Ben and Ina and California Red (not a wine!) and I stayed up late more than one night to find out what happened next.

I think that's the point of the program – to get readers out of their comfort zones. Zane Grey died in 1939, so the book itself wasn't new. But it was new to me. It got me out of my reading rut, and helped me appreciate another author and another genre. Maybe I'll read some Louis Lamour next.

Visit the library and go on a blind date with a book!

Why We Love West Sac

It takes a village to catch a dog

On Thursday, our new dog "Pooch" slipped out. She's a very timid, recent street dweller, fast and very hard to catch. Up Alameda Avenue and to Park Boulevard she went, criss-crossing Park Blvd. stopping traffic in both directions several times. Rudy and I, and our friend who was visiting, tried to coax her, or at least herd her, on the Trinity church grounds. We were joined by a couple of good Samaritans -- to no avail.

Off she went down Westacre, where, once again she stopped traffic for varying period. Here we were joined by more kind helpers, including our next door neighbor, a veteran in the Poochie wars. A nice lady, caught in the traffic blockage, parked her car and brought out some of her freshly made hamburger to try to entice the dog – but no joy.

A dapper-suit clad gentleman parked his car and joined up, patiently following Pooch around the corner onto Meadow. A nice couple parked their bicycles and began helping. On the curve, a young woman came out of her house with dog treats, a passing woman on a bicycle asked after the situation, returning with a corn dog from her neighbor. We all tried and tried to corral Pooch, but nothing worked. The young woman came back out with her daughter and some salami, but no luck (though corn dog and salami were devoured by "Pooch" at a safe distance).

There we were, my husband and I, our friend, our neighbor, the suited lawyer, the bicycle couple (the man often on his knees in the street!) the young woman, her two year old, and a scared dog. School bus and working pick up with trailer (source of the corn dog) stopped and waiting. Finally we were joined by a young man who lived there, who asked if pooch liked other dogs. He went and brought out his pit mix on a leash, and when Pooch approached for a nose to nose greeting, he scooped her up! Victory!!!

We got home to worried neighbors because we'd gone off in a hurry, not shutting the garage, and we weren't home to answer their knocks. They had called the police, in case there had been trouble, so we thanked them, waited, reassured the police and went on in with our dog, feeling so very well taken care of by our community.

At no time during the various traffic stoppages was there so much as a honk, or impatient word from a driver or passenger. We experienced assistance above and beyond the call of duty from friends, neighbors and many strangers, nothing but concern for the dog and for us. This is our West Sac at it's best and sweetest and we are deeply grateful to all. We know who some of you are, but to mention some by name and not others seems wrong, including the many folks in cars who were also patient and kind. Just know, each and every one, that we appreciate you a lot!

Make polio extinct

Protecting adults and children from flu, whooping cough and measles through vaccination dominates the news as unvaccinated children in California prove to be at increased risk of contracting these preventable diseases.

Thankfully in our state and across this country, the one-time childhood crippler, polio, has been eradicated, thanks to vaccination. Not so in Nigeria, Pakistan and Afghanistan. There, for want of a 60-cent oral vaccine and, in undernourished children, needed boosters, polio remains endemic.

Eradicating the scourge of polio worldwide is the mission of Rotary International in partnership with the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation. For every dollar raised by local Rotary chapters such as Rotary Club of West Sacramento, the Gates Foundation contributes two dollars. To date, Rotary International has helped immunize more than two billion children against polio in 122 countries, but we won't be satisfied until all children everywhere are safe from this preventable disease.

In just the first few months of 2014, Rotary Club of West Sacramento has contributed $530 to Rotary International's 'Polio Plus' world mission. Won't you join us? Just make out your tax-deductible check to "Polio Plus – RI Foundation."

Rotary Club of West Sacramento will forward your contribution to Rotary International.

Foster Care Recruitment and Retention efforts in Yolo County has been given a tremendous boost with a much appreciated $50,000 grant from Yocha Dehe Wintun Community Foundation. With this funding, Woodland Community College's Foster & Kinship Care Education (WCC FKCE) program, now offers new, higher levels of support for foster children 6 to 20 years old.

This funding allows WCC FKCE to complement its efforts for older youth that it has provided for its youngest children, those up to 5 years old, from an on-going generous seven-year First 5 Yolo Integrated Family Support Initiative grant. It is wonderful being able to serve all of the County's children touched by foster care and the local families who open their homes and hearts to them.

Support such as this can be life changing to a child. When foster teens were asked what such generosity means to them, several shared, "You are helping me want more for myself and my future" or, "I now feel that I am worth someone's time and effort."

With the benevolence of Yocha Dehe Wintun Community and First 5 Yolo funding, a positive and very definite trend is observed – local children are being placed much more often into local foster homes --each grant's basic goal. Recruitment seeks to bring awareness to the need for families willing to help raise were nearly 90 roosters being raised on the premises for cockfighting."

Ponce was also convicted of cockfighting crimes on his property after a 2005 incident.

The District Attorney's Office is demanding $106,235 from Ponce for costs to the County for impoundment, care, and euthanasia of the birds taken from his property. Ponce contested that amount at sentencing, and a restitution hearing is scheduled before Judge Maguire on April 11.

In a press statement, District Attorney Reisig denounced the "sport" of cockfighting:

"Along with inhumane treatment of the birds, cockfighting often involves illegal wagering of thousands of dollars, firearms and other weapons," said Reisig. "Cockfighting is not a sport. It's a crime."

she finds a cryptic clue that she believes to be a message from him. Then events take a tragic turn, and she realizes she's unknowingly stumbled into a tangle of present-day passions that may have already put her in deadly danger.

Originally published in England, this pleasantly atmospheric tale is being reissued in the States just in time for some serious curling-up-under-a-blanket winter escapism. Visions of sunlit ruins will enchant armchair travelers, and layers of ancient intrigue thrill history buffs; romantics will enjoy watching a cynic open her heart to love, and there's even a tinge of ghostly doings for fans of the gothic.

year old Merkley Avenue in possession of a garbage can that apparently belonged to Raley Field. The officer contacted the man at Poplar and Willow avenues.

In the can were "miscellaneous copper wiring and two aluminum grates." The ballpark could not be reached by phone to confirm whether the can or the metal items had been stolen. The material was brought to the police station parking lot for temporary storage.

Feb. 23, 11:15 a.m.

An unknown suspect took about $180 from the cash drawer at a recycling center on western West Capitol Avenue.

Feb. 23, 2:40 p.m.

A Riverpoint Court home store reported that a 59-year old Sacramento man had gone in, selected $79 worth of items from the shelf, and then returned them for store credit as if he had purchased them.

When the man came back later to use his store credit, a loss prevention officer detained him for police.

A woman claimed she owned a .22 caliber rifle found at her ex-husband's home on Janet Drive. There was no paperwork or record to confirm the claim, and the woman had a history of mental health issues. The rifle was booked for safekeeping.

Feb. 23, 8:17 p.m.

An officer wrote a report after an incident during "foot patrol of the 900-block of West Capitol, an area "known for its drug traffic and other violent criminal activities."

The officer walked past a motel room that had its "front door wide open."

Inside, sitting on a bed within two feet of the open door, was a 35-year old woman "actively smoking what I recognized as cocaine base. She was holding a glass smoking pipe in her mouth while heating the other end with a lighter."

The woman was booked and jailed.

a hurt and vulnerable child. Retention efforts serve to support caregivers as they strive to rebuild and stabilize lives. Current statistics exemplify how these goals are clearly being met:

We have decreased our foster family agency placements by 40 percent since January 2010 and doubled our relative and non-relative extended family member placements since January 2012.

The total number of youth placed in group homes has decreased by almost 300 percent from 51 in October 2009 to 18 in October 2013.

Twenty-five percent more children are now placed in our local Licensed foster homes.

PICKS OF THE WEEK

"The Book Thief" (PG-13)
-- During World War II, a young German girl, Liesel (Sophie Nelisse) moves in with her new foster parents. Liesel's new home is a strange place for a kid to learn about the world: The city is wracked by war, piles of books burn in the street, and her foster parents are hiding a young Jewish man under the stairs. Liesel begins "collecting" books wherever she can get her hands on them. Through reading and writing, she's able to make some kind of sense out of the world around her.

Based on the wildly successful young adult novel of the same title, the film tries to bring this dreamy, glossy, coming-of-age feel to the proceedings. There's something whimsical trying to work its way through the charred setting, but it's not getting through. It's the performances that carry the film, especially the foster parents, (Geoffrey Rush and Emily Watson), who are complicated-but-caring people.

"Inside Llewyn Davis" (R)
-- It's 1961, and New York's Greenwich Village is the cradle of a deep and expanding folk music scene. Llewyn Davis (Oscar Isaac) is a soulful young musician who just cannot get ahead. He's melancholy, broke, bearded, locked-out and technically homeless. He knows he might never achieve success in his artistic career. All of this happens with a sort of dark, dry humor around it.

Joel and Ethan Coen ("Raising Arizona," "No Country for Old Men" and many more) are working with familiar themes, but taking them even further than before. The movie is no barrel of laughs, but there are moments of sincere truth, which is a necessary ingredient for a real comedy.

"Out of the Furnace" (R) -- This chest-thumping revenge flick has just the right cast to make something more. Russell (Christian Bale) works at the mill in a run-down Pennsylvania steel town. His younger brother, Rodney (Casey Affleck), has returned from Iraq with head full of pain and anger. Rodney gets tied up in bare-knuckle boxing for a crime ring run by a menacing, theatrical, brutal boss (Woody Harrelson). When Rodney goes missing, the local law enforcement refuses to get involved, putting it on Russell to get justice for his younger brother.

Sophie Nelisse in "The Book Thief"

"Broken Circle Breakdown" (R) -- Didier and Elise are Belgian musicians in a bluegrass band -- they love each other, Americana, playing music together and their 6-year-old daughter, Maybelle. The storytelling begins when 6-year-old Maybelle is diagnosed with cancer. The story then jumps to the moment Didier and Elise fell in love. This bizarre and beautiful cycle of sadness and joy sets the pattern for the rest of the film. Between bouts of drama and elation, the film also delivers some fine music.

Even though it was his idea to have a holiday in France in the first place, Emily isn't surprised when her cousin isn't there to meet her at the train station. Henry has a reputation for being easily distracted, and she assumes he's off chasing the trail of his latest academic theory.

In the meantime, she has plenty to do exploring the picturesque town of Chignon, from the imposing edifice of its namesake castle to the winding streets and charming plazas of the village below. She's often in the company of the motley crew staying at her hotel, a bohemian jumble of artists and tourists that includes a seriously sexy British violinist who sets off all her warning bells.

Emily can't help but have romance on her mind, surrounded by the stories of the two tragic Isabelles of Chignon. Though separated by centuries -- one a medieval royal besieged by political enemies, the other a chambermaid during the Nazi occupation -- both women fell victim to lost loves and sad fates, and both are rumored to have hidden priceless treasures somewhere in the town.

But as days go by with no word from Henry, Emily becomes more and more uneasy, especially once she

Roast Up a Feast of Flavors

Roasting meats and vegetables is one of the oldest cooking techniques in human history. The earliest form of cooking was probably the direct heat method -- placing raw meat into an open fire. Roasting via indirect heat was probably an accident. Raw meat was left near the fire, cooking the side closest to the heat. Eventually, somebody thought of putting the meat on a stick, and turning it so that all of the sides cooked evenly -- and spit-roasting was born.

The earliest ovens were made of earth and clay and were found in Central Europe. An earth oven is one of the key indicators of human civilization. It is one of the most common artifacts archaeologists look for at an anthropological dig.

Typically, a pit was dug into the ground and then heated, usually by rocks or smoldering debris. The food was wrapped in leaves and set on top of the heat source, then covered with earth. Cooking times are usually long, as the food is cooked by slow roasting. This type of earth oven has been used by many cultures.

In pre-dynastic Egypt, each mud-brick house had an oven. The ceramic oven is built of clay or another ceramic material, and takes different forms depending on the culture. It is one of the earliest forms of our modern ovens. In India, it is referred to as a "tandoor." Ovens were used to cook food and to make bricks. Brick is another ceramic material and was used to make ovens popular in Italy. With no need for spits or constantly turning the food over a fire, oven roasting was born.

High-heat roasting concentrates the flavor of meats and vegetables and brings out their natural sweetness. Best of all, it can be done year-round -- on the grill in good weather and in the oven during cold weather.

There's no comparison between roasted and steamed vegetables. Roasted veggies have browning, caramelization and crisp edges and texture, which adds to their flavor. Roasted vegetables also add wonderful flavors to dishes without a lot of fat and calories. Roasting garlic, potatoes and carrots can work wonders as fat substitutes in recipes for mashed vegetables, sauces, cream soups and casseroles. You can spread six cloves of roasted garlic over a slice of bread as you would butter.

This recipe for Oven Roasted Vegetable Hash is the perfect way to roast up a feast of flavors using your favorite seasonal vegetables!

OVEN ROASTED VEGETABLE HASH

You can prepare all the vegetables up to 4 hours ahead, except the onions, which will become bitter. Don't overcrowd the pan or the food will steam, not roast.

- 3 to 3-1/2 pounds root vegetables, in any combination*
- 2 cups broccoli or cauliflower florets
- 2 medium yellow onions, peeled
- 3 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil, rendered bacon or pancetta fat or brown butter, or a mixture of the oils
- 1 tablespoon poultry seasoning
- 1 teaspoon ground black pepper
- 1 teaspoon honey or sugar
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 4 ounces aged goat cheese

Weichert, AS SURVIVING JOINT TENANT, as Trustor(s), in favor of FINANCIAL FREEDOM SENIOR FUNDING CORPORATION, A SUBSIDIARY OF INDYMAC BANK, F.S.B. as Beneficiary, WILL SELL AT PUBLIC AUCTION TO THE HIGHEST BIDDER, in lawful money of the United States, all payable at the time of sale, that certain property situated in said County, California describing the land therein as: SEE EXHIBIT "A" ATTACHED HERETO AND MADE A PART HEREOF EXHIBIT "A" LOT 35, ELKHORN VILLAGE NO. 5 ACCORDING TO THE OFFICIAL PLAT THEREOF FILED FOR RECORD IN THE OFFICE OF THE RECORDER OF YOLO COUNTY, CALIFORNIA, ON JANUARY 17, 1996, IN BOOK 5 OF MAPS, AT PAGE 27. The property heretofore described is being sold "as is". The street address and other common designation, if any, of the real property described above is purported to be: 828 JULIAN DRIVE, West Sacramento, CA 95605. The undersigned Trustee disclaims any liability for any incorrectness of the street address and other common designation, if any, shown herein. Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty, express or implied, regarding title, possession, or encumbrances, to pay the remaining principal sum of the Note(s) secured by said Deed of Trust, with interest thereon, as provided in said Note(s), advances if any, under the terms of the Deed of Trust, estimated fees, charges and expenses of the Trustee and of the trusts created by said Deed of Trust. The total amount of the unpaid balance of the obligations secured by the property to be sold and reasonable estimated costs, expenses and advances at the time of the initial publication of this Notice of Trustee's Sale is estimated to be $180,632.85 (Estimated). However, prepayment premiums, accrued interest and advances will increase this figure prior to sale. Beneficiary's bid at said sale may include all or part of said amount. In addition to cash, the Trustee will accept a cashier's check drawn on a state or national bank, a check drawn by a state or federal credit union or a check drawn by a state or federal savings and loan association, savings association or savings bank specified in Section 5102 of the California Financial Code and authorized to do business in California, or such other funds as may be acceptable to the Trustee. In the event lender other than cash is accepted, the Trustee may withhold the issuance of the Trustee's Deed Upon Sale until funds become available to the payee or endorsee as a matter of right. The property offered for sale excludes all funds held on account by the property receiver, if applicable. If the Trustee is unable to convey title for any reason, the successful bidder's sole and exclusive remedy shall be the return of monies paid to the Trustee and the successful bidder shall have no further recourse. Notice to Potential Bidders: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a Trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a Trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same Lender may hold more than one mortgage or Deed of Trust on the property. Notice to Property Owner: The sale date shown on this Notice of Sale may be postponed one or more times by the Mortgagee, Beneficiary, Trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924d of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about Trustee Sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale.
